Introduction

Introduction

This policy governs the use of data associated with the provision of the sub-letting of a hosting unit by a colocation customer, to its sub-lessees

Colocation is a facility located in the JSE data centre that allows for customers to place their hardware and software installed in a hosting unit in closer proximity to the trading systems of the various JSE markets.

Definitions

Definitions

- i. Colocation customer means a party that holds a contract with the JSE to utilise the hosting unit.
- ii. Hosting unit means a rack rented by a customer from the JSE to collocate the hardware and software within the JSE data centre.
- iii. Sub-lessee means a party to whom the colocation customer has sub-let the hosting unit, or part thereof.

Conditions

JS

Conditions

1. Only a customer which qualifies as a colocation customer and has identified itself as a distributor in the product and services form is allowed to provide a hosting unit, or part thereof, to its sub-lessees.
2. The colocation customer must ensure that:
 - i. Each Sub-Lessee completes a colocation data declaration Form.
 - ii. And it obtains permission from the JSE before providing access to the hosting unit to the sub-lessee.

Conditions

3. Each sub-lessee using data for external display distribution and/or non-display use must enter into an agreement.
4. Each sub-lessee using data for internal display use only is not required to enter into an agreement. The customer must report the sub-lessee's data usage as prescribed in the customer reporting policy.
